Transfers into Canyon's schools from Amarillo total a dozen

As a raging school land annexation controversy continues in its second year here, figures indicate more Amarillo School District children have come to school in Canyon this fall than vice versa.

While a handful of parents in the Glendale subdivision in the northern part of the Canyon school district have fought for two years to remove their children from Canyon schools for transfer to Amarillo, other Amarillo parents are paying up to $1000 per year to have their children attend schools in Canyon.

As school began Wednesday, Canyon and Amarillo school officials awaited word from the Texas Education Commissioner on a ruling as to whether 160 acres of land in the Glendale subdivision and surrounding territory could be annexed by the Amarillo school district.

In the meantime, the only two remaining school-age children in the Glendale subdivision are attending Canyon schools.

Five families two years ago petitioned the Randall County Board of School Trustees to allow their 160-acre subdivision to be annexed so their children could attend Amarillo schools.

Since that time, two of the families have moved and a third is selling her house to prepare for a move to Oklahoma.

The school trustees last November decided in favor of the families and the Canyon School Board appealed the decision to the education commissioner, contending the land should not be detached from the local district.

Supt. Jerry Jacobs said this week about a dozen children whose parents live inside the Amarillo School District will be attending Canyon schools this fall at their parents' request.

"The reason they give us is because the kids can get a better education," Jacobs said.

The parents are required to pay tuition of $500 per year if they requested transfer into the Canyon district before May 1 and about $1000 per year if they requested transfer after May 1, he said. The tuition funds compensate the district for the tax money, both local and state required to educate each child here.

Several of the parents of children transferred into the Canyon district told The News this week they have a variety of reasons for sending their children to Canyon schools.

Elmer Hays of 1542 Smiley said "trouble" in Amarillo's high schools led to his decision to send his daughter to Canyon for high school.

"Canyon's got good schools," he said. "She likes it."

Mrs. Travis Wilson of 4926 Matador said her daughter is attending Canyon Junior High School to play basketball in the local school district's girls' basketball program.

Other Wilson children, she said, are attending Amarillo schools.

Mrs. Jesse T. Maddox of 5012 SW 55th in Amarillo said her daughter, too, is athletically inclined and wanted to participate in the girls' basketball program in Canyon.

"Canyon is well-known for sports," she said. "And, she loves basketball."

Other Maddox children have attended Amarillo

Home building over earlier record

Paul Glovier, left, and Charlie Conatser obviously couldn't make through the front doors of Canyon High School, but then they wouldn't want to. The two members of the Canyon Senior Citizens Association ham it up a bit with a couple of wigs during the senior citizens' garage sale last week. The sale helped raise funds for remodeling the basement of the association's new building on 5th Avenue. Glovier is the chairman of a building committee which will handle the project. The committee is to meet at 6 p.m. Thursday to discuss their plans.

The number of building permits for new homes in Canyon passed the number issued during the record year of 1973 last week and appeared headed toward the 100 mark.

City Code Enforcement Officer Jerry Lehnick issued the 72nd permit for a new home Friday to surpass the record set during the entire year of 1973. That year, 68 building permits were issued for new homes.

If the pace continues, the number of permits issued for new homes could easily surpass a figure double the number issued in 1974. Only 42 permits for new homes were issued during 1974, a year of tight money and economic slump nation-wide.

Lehnick said the new homes are going up all over town to meet spiralling demand for housing in Canyon.

"If you have a dog house you can rent it out right now," he said.

June, July and August have been the big months this year for new home construction, according to Lehnick's records.

Only three permits for new homes were issued during January and only two in February. But, eight were issued in March, 10 in April, six in May, 12 in June, 14 in July and 17 so far in August.

Lehnick said most of the new homes under construction this year were in the $20,000 to $25,000 price category with others ranging upward from those figures.

While most of the new homes are going up in established subdivision developments, many new homes are being constructed, he said, on lots which have laid vacant for years.

"If you have a vacant lot and would like to sell it, you can find someone to buy it," he said. "The vacant lots are filling up now. These lots have been weed problems in the past and now they're having houses put on them."

Established subdivisions are filling up, too, he indicated.

He said seven houses are now under construction in Pioneer Estates in the east portion of the city and five houses are under construction in the new Tierra Blanca subdivision in the southeast portion of town.

He said only three unfilled lots are available on Holly Lane in the Davis-Hooper addition.

While new construction has been slowed somewhat in the southern portion of Hunsley Hills, Lehnick said he anticipates a big jump in housing permits issued for construction once water and sewer lines are extended to a new portion of the development later this month or next month.

The decade of the '70s has proven to be a banner period for housing construction in Canyon. The decade began slowly in 1970 with only 19 permits issued for new home construction. In 1971, 43 permits were issued, in 1972, 41 were issued and in 1973 the record of 68 was set.

Local real estate agents have said previously that the summer has been a good one for the real estate business in Canyon.

Box questions own effectiveness, unsure whether to serve again

Cloyce K. Box, chairman of the West Texas State University board of regents, said this week his effectiveness may have run its course and he's not sure he'd want to be reappointed to the board.

Box, a Dallas businessman who has had controversial roles in picking top-level personnel at the university, said he has not been approached by Gov. Dolph Briscoe for reappointment to the board.

"I have not been approached," he said. "I don't know, well, to tell you the truth, I hadn't assumed I would be approached and so I don't know whether I would or would not (accept reappointment)."

If he were approached for reappointment, Box said he would "consider it."

"You never know when your effectiveness has run its gauntlett," he said. "Maybe mine has. I don't know."

Box was appointed to the board of regents for the university by Gov. Preston Smith in 1969 shortly after the separate board was created by legislative action for the university.

At the new board's first meeting that year, he was elected chairman of the board and has remained in the position unchallenged for six years.

Box has taken a personal role in the personnel chosen for leadership positions at the university and took personal credit three years ago for the firing of the late Joe Kerbel, then head coach and athletic director, and subsequent hiring of current Athletic Director Gene Mayfield.

He also took a strong position in the search for a new president two years ago as regents sought a replacement for Dr. James P. Cornette, who was to retire.

It was Box who two weeks ago proposed a due process procedure be adopted by the board for considering the controversial charges of Dr. Emilio Caballero, chairman of the WTSU art department, who has charged he was coerced into resigning his position.

Box is the chairman of the board of the OKC Corporation in Dallas.

His term is due to expire on the board at the end of August but he is to serve until Briscoe names a successor.

Two other university regents' terms also expire at the end of the month.

B. Raymond Evans, Tulia cattleman and businessman, has served on the board six years.

Jack Shelton, Amarillo cattleman, has served only about a year on the board.

School bond issue, new state law to hike taxes drastically in '77

Canyon school district taxpayers face a large tax increase in 1976-77 even without the additional tax burden which will be required should bonds be issued for construction of new schools, members of a citizens committee were told Thursday night.

Supt. Jerry Jacobs outlined current financial problems and said that through either a massive district-wide reappraisal of property or an increase in the percentage of assessment more tax money must be raised for the next fiscal year.

School Financial Advisor Bob Davis told members of the School Advisory Committee for Sound Financing, which is studying the possibility of calling a bond election for the fall, that issuance of $4.5 million in bonds would increase the tax rate by about 40 cents per $100 of valuation.

Issuance of bonds would more than double the bonded indebtedness of the district, his figures indicate, and would require additional tax funds.

But, Davis said, without an increase in the assessed valuation of property in the district, the schools can forget about issuing more than $4.5 million in bonds. Early estimates from architects indicate construction of a new elementary school and new high school would cost about $5.5 million.

"It's inevitable for 1976-77 that something will have to occur as far as our evaluation base is concerned," Supt. Jacobs said. "Either a complete reappraisal or the percentage of assessment will have to be raised to meet costs after this year."

For the next school year, he said, the district will have to raise from local tax-payers an additional $140,450, as mandated by a new state law.

School board members raised taxes to the maximum allowed by law this year when they passed a measure calling for a tax rate of $1.92 per $100 on 40 per cent valuation. The measure included allocations of $1.50 of the rate to go to the operating fund and 42 cents to go to the interest and sinking fund to retire bonds issued previously.

Davis said the district cannot raise the operating tax rate above the $1.50 level under state law, but can raise the percentage of assessment upon which the rate is levied.

He and Jacob agreed that while on the surface the district charges the rate against 40 per

Plagued lake making a comeback

Polution-and drought-plagued Buffalo Lake west of Canyon is making a slow comeback after a winter when fewer than 10,000 ducks wintered-over at the refuge.

Between 300,000 and 400,000 ducks are expected to winter at the lake this year, Refuge Manager Paul Ferguson said.

And, he is enthusiastic about future possibilities since the lake has acquired about 300 acre feet of water through the wet summer and spring months this year.

The water, inflow from a dozen inches of rainfall through winter, spring and summer months, has been impounded as planned behind a large dike constructed by refuge personnel more than a year ago at the very south end of the lake.

The dike was designed to hold water at the southern end of the defunct lake in an effort to support water-fowl which in better years flocked to the lake to the tune of nearly a million a winter.

Ferguson said the water inflow is the first since the dike was constructed. The lake has been dry since 1972 when Dept. of the Interior officials decided to drain the lake and allow it to dry.

Birds have already taken up new residence at the south end of the lake with the availability of water, Ferguson said, and among them are 500 ducks.

"We have some broods of ducks we've never had before," he said. "I guess they like the habitat."

He hopes the water will not only be retained at the south end of the lake but will be supplemented this fall with more rains.

If such is the case, he said, he plans to introduce minnows and small catfish into the lake with an eye toward the time when it might be possible to release some of the dike-held water to rush to the north dammed end of the lake for recreational fishing purposes.

If the water holds out through the fall, Ferguson expects ducks and geese to flock to the wildlike preserve this winter in numbers much greater than in the past

WT tells department heads their jobs are not tenured

West Texas State University administrators have informed department chairmen they serve at the discretion of the university and do not have tenure in their positions.

Letters from Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins to the department chairmen are apparently an off-shoot of the current controversy involving the status of Dr. Emilio Caballero, chairman of the art department.

Dr. Ray A. Malzahn, vice president for academic affairs and author of the letters, said the wording in the letters was simply an extension of letters sent department chairmen in past years.

He declined to discuss the connection between the letters and the Caballero controversy, saying he had been instructed not to discuss the Caballero matter.

Caballero was informed by letter last week that while he may retain a position as professor of art at the university he will not be recommended for retention as chairman of the department. He had resigned the chairmanship last January but repudiated the resignation in June and said administrators forced him to resign earlier.

He has said he will protest the most recent letter from Watkins, the university president, through formal channels established by university regents at an early August meeting here.

One university department chairman who received the letter from Watkins said it stipulates that the chairman is tenured as a

President seeks fed. ruling

Decision expected for Mrs. Strain

The wheels of the Justice Department, greased by a Presidential order, may move a little more rapidly this fall in grinding out a decision on a case involving Canyon's Mrs. Marguerite Strain.

Mrs. Strain, who three years ago filed a complaint alleging the city's retirement system discriminates against women, said she's learned that President Gerald Ford has instructed the Justice Department to determine whether or not cases such as her's actually involve discrimination.

Canyon's city comptroller, Mrs. Strain has worked for the city more than 20 years and has continued working here past retirement age with special approval of the city commission.

She said this week she contacted Squire Padgett Jr., junior attorney in the civil rights division of the Justice Department, and he said a decision from the Department is to be rendered by Oct. 15 at the instruction of the President.

"He said the President usually get what he asks for," Mrs. Strain said.

Federal officials have in the past been slow to help Mrs. Strain, who in August 1972 charged that the city and the Texas Municipal Retirement System, to which the city belongs, discriminates against women on the basis of sex in the allocation of retirement benefits.

The federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in summer 1974 ruled that the TMRS did, in fact, discriminate against women in its allocation of benefits according to actuary tables.

But, the EEOC only suggested Mrs. Strain take the TMRS to Housing shortage presents dilemma

Canyon faces an unusual dilemma these days.

On the one hand, the city seems favored by all sorts of people who have come to the area for new jobs or for advanced schooling.

Last week, for example, the Texas Department of Health Resources announced it will locate the regional headquarters for a new health region in Canyon. This could mean as many as 40 or 50 new families locating in the city.

Students have been arriving in Canyon throughout the summer looking for housing for the fall term. While no great increase in student enrollment is anticipated this fall, the students found housing unavailable to a greater extent than in the past.

On the other hand, then, is the housing situation here. While building permits for new homes have been issued in numbers surpassing years past, the pace has not been enough to keep up with demand.

The situation is a real estate agent's dream. Demand exceeds supply.

But, the lack of housing here could bode harm for one key institution in the long run.

The lack of housing might actually prove to work to the detriment of West Texas State University, which has been working hard for the last few years to attract more and more students.

Oklahoma universities report record numbers of students flocking to their doors for the fall. And, it might be advanced that in a national period when jobs are not plentiful for the young and when there is no war to take up the time of the young, they must have something to do and for many this something to do is college.

Will potential students come to a university where they cannot find housing available? Doubtful. Will they come to a university when they have to drive from Amarillo, where housing is not only more expensive but also just as scarce? Doubtful again.

The housing situation, then, might well stymie the growth university officials have been so seeking.

The university itself could take steps which might help alleviate to an extent the housing shortage problem here, if it is true that more students would like to live in Canyon than can find housing.

One local observor has suggested that for the short run, any way, the university might consider leasing a sizeable number of mobile homes and renting the units out to students. The enterprise could be operated at a profit or at least on a break-even basis.

Or the university might find money to construct apartment-type units. Given the uncertainty of the situation, however, this might be a less than conservative proposal.

At any rate, attempts by the university to provide more housing for students would give those students who must live in Amarillo a chance to live in Canyon and might also take from Canyon housing units students now living there, making room for others who desire to live here.

Whatever the solution, one must be found or Canyon and the university could feel the ill-effects of the housing shortage. — C.W.

They support, but aren't supported

A letter last week to Ann Landers must have been penned by someone from Canyon.

It undoubtedly struck a responsive chord for dozens of local businessmen, who support the community only to find that may times they themselves are unsupported by the community.

The letter goes like this, and we print it in its entirety:

"Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to ask the American people a few questions. It's a matter of economic survival to me as well as millions of other 'little people' who have small stores.

"Who do you ask to cash your checks? Who do you ask for credit when things are tight? Who do you ask to take ads for your organizations, yearbooks and programs? Who do you ask for contributions for your church suppers, raffles, etc? Who do you call after hours when you need a special item? Who do you ask to put up your posters for special events?

"It's your local, hometown small businessman. After all, he's your friend and your neighbor.

"But when you want to make a purchase, how often do you drive past his place of business and go to a giant store thinking you might save a few cents without giving your local merchant a chance or even comparing his prices?

"We are competitive with the biggest stores price-wise and our services are often better. But we can't survive much longer. When we go, you'll miss us."

For Canyon businessmen, who annually dole out thousands of dollars to Boy Scouts, churches, Little League, Future Farmers, Future Homemakers, Future Teachers, Senior Citizens, and other groups too numerous to mention, the competition comes from Amarillo, just 15 miles to the north.

That's not just speculation. Sales tax data from Canyon businesses when compared to data from towns the size of Canyon in other parts of the state indicate that about 60 per cent of the retail business is flowing somewhere else.

It can't be said often enough: Support your Canyon business man. After all, he's supporting you and your children. — C.W.

No candle on this American problem

Some things even the editorialist can't change. But, sometimes it's just as much fun to curse the dark.

Take the English language, for example. Specifically, the system of spelling. It's terrible. Yet all efforts at some limited reform have failed.

Not that it hasn't been tried. Several years ago a group called the Simplified Spelling Society conducted a campaign on the subject, and while unsuccessful, they did work up some interesting

Caballero controversy endangers presidency at WT

BY CARROLL WILSON

This column represents a reversal on a position taken last June concerning the fight between Dr. Emilio Caballero, chairman of the West Texas State University art department, and President Lloyd I. Watkins.

Even an editorial columnist should be allowed the privilege of changing his mind.

I now believe, for the reasons outlined below, it is up to Caballero to step aside as department chairman with reluctance, certainly, but without pursuing the due process procedure established earlier in this month for his case by university regents.

As I said two months ago, my primary concern — and it should be the primary concern of all interested in the welfare of the university — is that the matter be concluded as quickly as possible to avoid tarnishing the university itself.

This cannot be accomplished by a drawn-out procedural fight between Caballero and Watkins or Watkins and the regents.

A prolonged fight will hurt the university as a whole not only image-wise, but in several other key areas.

Because, in the broadest sense, the fight between Caballero and Watkins is, in reality, a fight by Watkins to retain his rightful power to control the university and its personnel.

In this vein, the Caballero controversy can be viewed as an effort by Watkins to be president of the university in the true sense of the word.

Watkins' ability to administer properly will be unalterably harmed if Caballero wins his fight. It is being hurt by the fact that Caballero is fighting and by the fact that the regents seem amenable to the arena in which the fight is occurring.

A college president, like a general, must have the right and the ability to hire and fire administrators as he sees fit.

College administrators, including department heads, have never had and should never have guaranteed employment in their administrative positions.

Just as the regents have the undeniable right to hire and fire the president, the president must, to be truly effective, have the right to hire and fire those administrators with whom he must work closely in guiding the university.

The regents damaged this kind of relationship earlier this month when they passed a resolution establishing a due process procedure for Caballero to follow in protesting any forced removal as department chairman.

In fact, an administrator should have no right to the kind of due process established when he loses his job. Establishment of a due process procedure tampers with the very heart of administration — the ability of the boss to make a decision and have it stick. This does not refer to faculty members, but only to administrators.

Establishment of the due process procedure questions the authority of Watkins and places in a cloud of doubt his ability to truly administer the university.

The primacy of the regents is recognized, to be sure, but it is one of their responsibilities, I think, to allow the president to administer while they set policy guidelines.

It is not a regent function to administer the university.

And, in this vein, the Caballero controversy becomes a test of the ability of Watkins to shun the advances of certain regents, including Board Chairman Cloyce Box, into the administration and administrative details of the university.

When viewed in this light, it can be seen that no president worth his salt can operate effectively if the regents are actually admininstering the university. The end result is administration by a part-time committee, a committee of cattlemen and businessmen who don't know a university curriculum problem from the aft section of an Apollo spacecraft.

No president worth his salt will stay long in such a situation.

New York writer slanders Panhandle area

By ANN BROWN

New Yorkers seem convinced that all outlanders (anyone who lives outside New York) are abysmally ignorant.

Apparently, they think we can't read, or that we don't read newspapers from out of state.

The old Texas cowboy, who visited New York around the turn of the century, had much the same attitude.

When asked his impression of America's largest city, the cowboy said, "I guess it's all right; it seems like a nice town. But it won't ever amount to anything; it's too far from anywhere."

In the June 16, 1975, issue of The Times Union of Rochester, N.Y., the banner headline, page 1 story concerns the Texas Panhandle. It related to the closing of the atom bomb factory in Iowa:

"Because of reduced nuclear weapons production requirements," the Atomic Energy Commission said when they forecast the closing of the Iowa plant, "all the U. S. atomic gravity bombs, all its missile warheads and atomic artillery shells, and its nuclear demolition charges will, from next week on, be made at a single plant only — the so-called Pantex factory in the desert wasteland of the Texas Panhandle, outside the lonely truck stop town of Amarillo."

It is regrettable that the men on the Atomic Energy Commission are so poorly informed about their own country. But that they are so lacking in discretion as to publicize their ignorance is rather frightening.

In both theory and practice, New Yorkers obviously prefer welfare to defense. If bombs start falling on their city, however, they may change their attitude toward the Texas defense plant they esteem so lightly.

Congress spends millions of our tax dollars on research into such projects as the sex life of Polish frogs.

It would surely promote national understanding and empathy if New Yorkers knew how much of their food supply came from the Texas "desert" they so disparage.

Texas supplies great quantities of bread, beef, pork, potatoes, fruits, and vegetables to the other states. And there are probably people in every state wearing jeans that were grown in Texas and sewed up in Amarillo's Levi plants.

Doubtless the New York editor, who published the description of the Texas Plains as a wasteland, was convinced of the truth of the statement. A brief glance at the national almanac would have shown him that Texas is one of the minority of states that sends more money to Washington than it gets back.

Not only is Texas among the most productive states in the nation, but the Plains country is the bread basket of Texas.

New Texans take kindly to having their persons or their families insulted. It's difficult to keep quiet while our state is slandered — especially our beautiful Golden Spread.

It's obvious the writer has never been to this part of Texas. Amarillo could promote public relations by making this contribution to his education.

Why not invite the Times-Union editor to come down and rewrite the article from observation?

There are several local people who would be happy to pay his fare — if he can produce the area described so vividly.

It was the day of Eclipse windmills, Home Comfort ranges, Stetson hats, Arbuckles coffee, boots and buggies. "The salesmen came through selling them as men now sell brushes." Mrs. Ed Harrell, affectionately called "Granny" Harrell, was recalling memories of her life as the wife of a rancher in Randall County before the turn of the century.

Samuella Barks was eight years old when her family moved to the Texas Plains from Missouri in 1891. She started to school in Canyon's first school. She said, "There were about 12 to 15 students in the entire school. The site of that school is near where the present high school is located. After attending school for a few years in Canyon, I went back to Missouri and stayed two years with my grandparents. Upon my return to Canyon at the age of 15, I met Ed Harrell. Our home was located on Palo Duro Creek near Ed's place. The day after I got home, Ed took me for a buggy ride and explained to me that there were more men than women in this country and someone would marry me soon and that somebody might as well be him. We were married a short time later in December of 1898; I was 15 and he was a horse rancher at age 30.

My first long dress was my wedding dress. In those days, girls wore short dresses until they were eighteen or married." Mrs. Harrell's wedding dress was a dark brown coat suit of wool broadcloth with a short jacket and a gored skirt flounced at the hem. A highlight of the wedding was a new buggy drawn by two horses.

Granny continued, "Our home was a small dugout, the only furniture being an iron bed, tables and chairs and a cook stove. Fuel for the stove was "Prairie coal," or better known to us, cow chips. The dugout was considered nice and comfortable. The only wood used were beams to support the roof and door. It was always warm in the winter, although sometimes we were snowed in for several days at a time. The dugout was also cool in the summer.

Although we had several hired hands, occasionally it was necessary for me to help with the cattle. I usually helped with the marking and cutting. My job was to keep the cows busy while Ed marked the newborn calves. He liked to mark them as soon as they were born because it was easier than doing several at a time.

Our diet consisted mainly of meat, bread and dried beans. We did not have a garden because my husband did not eat vegetables. The only vegetable I missed was tomatoes. One day while in Amarillo Ed saw a box of tomatoes in a store and bought them for me. I appreciated those tomatoes more than anything else he could have brought me.

When we were first married, there weren't any flies. During the summer we would butcher a cow and hang it on the windmill. I would cut off meat daily as we needed it. After butchering a hog, I would make lye soap to last for several weeks. We used this soap for bathing, shampooing, cleaning and washing clothes. I also used the lard from the hog for cooking.

We washed our clothes once a week. During the summer we bathed in the creek. We didn't own a bathtub until we moved to Canyon some years later. I never wore a pair of pants; my dresses were down to the ankles. I like to ride side saddle and could ride for half a day in that fashion without tiring myself."

To the end of her life in 1972, Granny Harrell was an active, cheerful person who enjoyed sharing her experiences with others. During one of the last interviews, she stated, "I broke one of my last links with the old days about a month ago when I had my long hair cut off short."

These and other recollections of the pioneer life of Mrs. Harrell are contained in several interviews housed in the Archives of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

Public Hearing Tues. On School's Budget

A $3.4 million budget for the 1975-76 fiscal year will receive a public airing Tuesday night as Canyon school board members meet at the new administration building.

The budget hearing is set for 8:30 p.m. at the building.

Board members are to consider approval of the budget during the meeting.

The budget will require a tax increase of 7 cents per $100 for the coming year. Board members recently upped taxes to $1.92 per $100 on 40 per cent of valuation.

Even with the tax increase, about $30,000 of the budget must come from reserves built up by the board.

Taxes from school district residents will give the school district budget a solid $1.05 million basis.

Funds from the State of Texas will total $2.3 million for the coming year.

Payroll for the school year will take the biggest bite of revenues with the payroll totalling $2.04 million for the year.

Instruction of students will require $2.2 million of the $3.4 million budget.

Save breath on hair code

Dear Sir,

I have a suggestion for saving space — and paper and ink — in the newspaper. Why not in giving accounts of school board meetings simply write that "the next fifty-five minutes — or whatever — were spent in a discussion of hair length for boys"? This would put a matter that has been reported enough for the public to know fairly well what the people concerned have to say in proportion and leave space for social items or personal items that maybe have to be omitted for lack of space.

Then when a change is made, as was made a few years ago when the big educational issue in the district was pant suits for girls, a picture of three teachers with nice sideburns and hair waving slightly over the collar can be printed to show the matter brought to an end. (In the case of the pant suits, we had at midyear a picture of three pretty teachers in their pant suits, showing that it was respectable.)

It is interesting to note that if any of a number of public — and conservative — figures were to be invited to speak at our school, they would supposedly have to have hair cuts and sideburn trims; Billy Graham comes to mind, but there are many.

Actually, of course, as you noted in your editorial, hair just isn't as important as the basic skills

Hair decision shallow

Dear Editor,

In a wide open country, a narrow, shallow, clear stream rushed along over limestone rock and emptied into a small but useful lake.

In time the stream began to change. The water that ran off the land began to fill with effluents and the stream slowed to a polluted trickle and it died; and with it, the lake.

In this same land a narrow, shallow school board and its' administrators rushes along over the bedrock of reason; and babbling away, pollutes the stream of reason with the effluence of their pomposity and egocentricity until finally the stream becomes a dirty, disease filled ditch that cannot be approached because of the hot air that rushes from each member of the school board.

This hot wind stirs the dusty manure and causes it to fill the eyes of any petitioner who comes before them.

No reasonable man wishes to be covered with hot manure dust so he retreats without receiving redress for his grievance.

The school board and its administrators (whose noses are a darker shade of brown) settle back on their cow pod throne to recite again the litany of "How wonderful we are."

With frustration,
Vivian Kay D. Madewell
(Mrs. James W. Madewell)

Legal plunder defined

Dear Troy,

As you know I have not always seen eye to eye with you on some issues, however I want to say that I do agree with you about the article in the Canyon Rim about Mrs. Ford. She blew it!

I lived in Colorado Springs for several years and the attached paragraph was in every issue of the Gazette. If I was affluent enough to do so I would buy space and run it in your paper for several months. But I cannot.

I believe you would do yourself a favor and every taxpayer by running it a few times. Evidently tax payers long ago had some strong ideas about taxation.

R. A. Smith

(Editor's Note: The following is the paragraph from Mr. Smith.)

"But how is this legal plunder to be identified? Quite simply. See if the law takes from some persons what belongs to them, and gives it to other persons to whom it does not belong. See if the law benefits one citizen at the expense of another by doing what the citizen himself cannot do without committing a crime." - Frederic Bastiat, "The Law," 1850

Final Film To Be Shown

The final film of the season at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum will be Walt Disney Productions' "The Living Desert" on Saturday and Sunday beginning at 2:30 p.m.

And to close the season of summer fun will be the second annual firing up of the museum's early 1900s popcorn wagon Aug. 31. Free popcorn and peanuts will be passed out to museum visitors.

"The Living Desert" is an Academy Award winning true life adventure on the Great American Desert. It focuses on the varied forms of life found in the harsh region, where survival is a struggle against extremes and predators roam free.

The film will be shown in the second floor lecture room in the museum's main building. Admission is free.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The City of Canyon, Texas, will hold its second public hearing concerning the Community Development Block Grant program on September 8, 1975 at 7 p.m. This hearing will be conducted in the Canyon Community Center, 300 16th Street.

Citizen participation has been designated by Federal guidelines as an important requirement in the application process of Community Development funds. To meet this requirement, two public hearings must be held. The first public hearing was held December 30, 1974. Since this time, the City of Canyon has received an invitation from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to file a full application for Community Development Discretionary Block Grant assistance. HUD has suggested the full amount of $22,000 be used for street paving as indicated in the pre-application submitted in February, 1975.

This public hearing is designed to offer the citizens the opportunity to actively be a part of the planning process of identifying community problems, setting goals, establishing programs and priorities. It will also include presentation designed to provide information to citizens concerning the amount of funds available, the limitations for application submittals, type of programs eligible and ineligible for funding, program requirements concerning environmental reviews, requirements of the City as to time tables, data required for applications, and conformance with other Federal laws. Various staff of the City will be assigned at the public hearing to assist citizens to understand the different program requirements of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

This public hearing is intended to be used to identify needs and programs which will be consolidated into the final application to be submitted to HUD for approval.

schools.

"We have a six-year-old coming up and I wish we could send her down (to Canyon) after the sixth grade," she said. "If we'd been wise enough we have bought a home on the other side of the E-way so all the children could have gone to Canyon schools."

Jacobs said eight Canyon youngsters will be attending Amarillo schools this fall specifically for special education classes offered there which are not offered locally.

Four seniors have also requested transfer to Amarillo schools, he said, because their families just recently moved into the Canyon district and they desire to finish out their high school at the school they originally attended.

One eighth grader will also be attending Amarillo schools as a transfer student, he said, as he has been for the past four or five years.

A third grade student will also transfer to Amarillo from the Canyon district.

The children of parents involved in the attempt to have the Glendale subdivision detached from Canyon are remaining in Canyon schools at least until the final decision on the appeal is rendered.

Mrs. Mary Jensen of 6005 Shawnee, one of the original petitioners in the annexation plea, said her son began school in third grade at Gene Howe Elementary School this fall, but she has plans to move to Oklahoma this term.

She said her husband, James, died Aug. 4, and she has placed her home on the real estate market to prepare for the move.

Two other families, who signed the original petition for detachment, have also moved from the Canyon district, according to Mrs. Jensen.

She said the Wilbur Knightons, who lived at 6003 Shawnee, have moved to Oklahoma City.

And, the David Coldirons, who lived at 6007 Shawnee, have moved into the Amarillo school district, she said.

The Richard Hadleys, who did not live in the Glendale addition when the original petition was circulated, have a third-grade daughter who is attending Gene Howe, she said.

Other petitioners, the Jack Sebastians and the Ron Fines, have no children, she said.

Bond. . .

cent of valuation, in reality the percentage of valuation is around the 20 to 25 per cent level because the factors upon which the valuations are based were established in pre-inflationary 1966.

Davis and Jacobs estimated the current 40 per cent assessed valuation should be around the $200 million mark rather than the current $72 million mark.

Davis said until the school board adjusts the assessed valuations upward, the district is prohibited from issuing more than $4.5 million in bonds because the ratio of bonded indebtedness to assessed valuation will be too near the 10 per cent mark.

With a $4.5 million bond issue, he said, the district's debt will be $6.94 million and will require about $680,000 each year to service.

About $1 per $100 would be required to service that kind of debt, his figures indicate. Only 42 cents per $100 is currently required to service about $300,000 annual bonded indebtedness.

In other business Thursday night, the citizens advisory group, appointed by the school board to study the bond issue, discussed at length the possibility of using Canyon's schools for four quarters rather than three quarters to avoid the need for construction of new schools.

Jacobs presented pertinent portions of the Texas Education Code which outline use of the quarter system.

The code allows school districts to operate schools for a full four quarters, but stipulates that students must attend no more than three quarters and the student members of one family must be allowed to attend the same three quarters.

Jacobs said he's instructed school staff members to conduct a study on the feasibility of using the local schools all four quarters of the year and will have the results later in the fall.

Dr. Jay Wooten, chairman of the committee, asked Jacobs to provide him with answers to the following questions:

*By what percent would school taxes be increased by issuance of $5.5 million in bonds?

*What is the possibility of running school in two sections — with one section beginning at 7 a.m. and continuing to noon and the other section running from noon to six p.m.?

*What is the possibility of running school more hours each day to accomodate more students?

The committee will meet again at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 28 at the junior high school.

two or three years.

The year before the lake was allowed to dry — 1971 — the lake had about 85,000 Canada geese and 700,000 ducks as winter residents.

At that time the lake had about 2200 acre feet of water.

The water available this fall could mean as many as 10,000 to 20,000 geese and 300,000 to 400,000 ducks, Ferguson said.

Ferguson said the water which has run into the lake from recent rains seems to be pollution-free.

The lake, constructed by Depression-era laborers in the 1930s, was polluted by upstream cattle feedyards in the late 1969s after two decades of use as a major Panhandle recreational boating, fishing and picnicking area.

Three years ago, a local citizens study committee, proposed the Dept. of the Interior construct the dike at the south end of the lake to catch run-off for the use of wild fowl.

The recommendation coincided with thinking at the federal level and the plan was put into action.

Since that time, the dike has been constructed and refuge employees have carried out other measures to try to reduce the pollution in the lake bottom soils. Grain sorghum and wheat have been planted in the bottom north of the dike in an effort to reduce the nutrient levels in the soils.

court to seek relief. The TMRS through its executive director has repeatedly invited court action on the charge.

Since last summer's ruling, Mrs. Strain has talked to attornies, but has not yet filed suit. The Texas Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union has offered financial support for her case.

In late June, Padgett came to Canyon from Washington to discuss the case with Mrs. Strain and with former City Manager George Loudder.

But, a Justice Department spokesman told The News shortly after Padgett's visit that they had not yet determined whether to seek relief for Mrs. Strain.

She said this week the President's interest in the situation apparently springs from similar discriminatory contentions concerning the federally-sponsored Social Security System.

According to TMRS literature, a woman retiring at age 65 after 20 years service would receive benefits equal to those a man retiring at age 60 after 20 years service would receive.

Thus, she has contended, a woman must work five years longer than a man to earn equal benefits.

TMRS officials have countered that because a man is expected to live a shorter period of time than a woman his benefits would be proportionately greater.

faculty member but has no tenure in the administrative chairmanship position, and therefore serves at the discretion of the university.

"Until Caballero came along, there was never any question about it," he said of his understanding that he has no tenure as an administrator.

Another department chairman said he, too, has long recognized that as an administrator he is untenured and can be removed at the discretion of the administration.

Malzahn said it has been his understanding, also, that while he may have tenure as a chemistry professor he has no tenure as academic vice president.

Malzahn said the question of tenure for administrators has been answered in the old Faculty Handbook, much of which was pre-empted two years ago by a new academic freedom, responsibility and tenure policy adopted for the university.

Quoting from the tenure policy, Malzahn said it is specifically for faculty members:

"Academic tenure is the assurance that the person possessing it shall, except under extraordinary circumstances as stated in paragraph 10, be continued in his academic position until retirement . . ."

In laying out eligibility for tenure, the policy speaks only of faculty ranks of instructor, assistant professor, associate professor and professor.

Another portion of the tenure policy refers to administrative positions: "An appointment to administrative office, or the loss of same, shall not deprive the appointee of tenure in the highest instructional rank in which he served prior to or during his appointment to such administrative office . . ."

Caballero's attorney, George Whittenburg of Amarillo, told The News last week he will fight the dismissal of Caballero as department chairman on the basis that he believes department chairmen serve until retirement and for good behavior.

Museum Shelves Plans

Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum officials have temporarily shelved plans for a half-million dollar connecting building.

But, Dr. James Hanson, museum director, said at least two options are available to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, which helps to finance museum activities.

The society, he said, could attempt a local fund-raising drive, an option he believes might be unwise, or it could wait until the 1977 session of the Texas Legislature and try again to gain a state appropriation of the $380,000 which is needed to build the connector.

Hanson said he has no idea now which route the society's board of directors, which had planned the connecting structure, might choose to take to finance the project.

"I would guess that large amount of money they would not be interested in trying to raise," he said.

He said he would rather see society-raised funds go into permanent exhibits and artifacts than in construction.

"I hate to see too much money go into construction because while it makes things easier on me to have more space, the society doesn't benefit greatly," he said. "I would like to see their money go into exhibits and collections."

Plans worked up last spring called for state funding of a one-floor connecting building to be constructed between the museum and the old West Texas State University library, which is now the museum annex.

As planned, the connector would have been the primary entrance to the museum and would also have exhibits, information areas and snack-bar and lounge areas.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe vetoed the $380,000 Texas legislators had appropriated for the project after receiving the budget for the next biennium in early summer.

While the museum will not be funded for the construction project, Hanson said he's pleased the legislators and governor left in the budget funding for $140,000 to provide air conditioning for the museum.

"The air conditioning is a very important thing," he said. "It's pretty necessary to prevent damage to the artifacts."

New rates for long distance calls within Texas.

With Discount Periods and a new One-Minute Rate, you may be able to save money.

Rates for Long Distance calls within Texas have just changed.

For you – the telephone customer – it means most rates are going up.

But you may be surprised to learn that rate changes won't necessarily bring higher telephone bills.

Because with our new discount for dialing your own calls, you can better control your Long Distance costs.

In some cases, you may be able to save money on your Long Distance bill by taking advantage of these rates.

For example, there's a new one-minute rate on all calls that you dial yourself – without the operator's help.

Under the old rate, the initial rate period was for three minutes. Now on One-Plus dialed calls the initial rate period is one minute.

That means you can save by reducing the length of your call.

*DISCOUNT RATE PERIODS FOR ONE-PLUS CALLS WITHIN TEXAS

	Mon	Tues	Wed	Thurs	Fri	Sat	Sun
8 a.m. to 5 p.m.	Day Rate Period Full Rate
5 p.m. to 11 p.m.	Evening Rate Period 30% Discount						Eve. 30% Discount
11 p.m. to 8 a.m.	Night and Weekend Rate Periods 40% Discount

NOTE: The Evening rate applies all day on the following holidays: New Year's Day, July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day, except in instances where the holiday falls into Night/Weekend period. In this case, the lower rate applies.

*On operator-assisted calls, the same rate applies at all hours on all days.

Also, for the first time we are offering flat percentage discounts for Evening, Night and Weekend One-Plus calls.

Using the Day rate as the base, the Evening rates will be 30 per cent less. And, on Nights and Weekends there will be a 40 per cent discount.

So, if you call later in the day or night, or on weekends, you're going to get the lowest rates possible.

But if you place calls through an operator, rates for these Zero-Plus calls will be higher, at any time – night or day. These include calls from a coin phone, collect, credit card and calls billed to a third number.

The initial rate period of three minutes will continue for these and other operator-assisted calls.

And, person-to-person calls will cost more than any other type call.

*EXAMPLE OF NEW RATES FOR MAXIMUM DISTANCES

	#One-Plus	Each Additional One-Plus Minute
DAY RATE	50¢ or less	41¢ or less
EVENINGS 30% Discount	35¢ or less	29¢ or less

#One-Plus charges for 1 minute.

NOTE: One-Plus rates also apply on station-to-station calls placed with an operator where One-Plus facilities are not available.

*Rates quoted do not include taxes.

Simply put, if you dial the call yourself, you are going to get a lower rate. If you place your call through an operator, it will cost more.

Now our new rates offer you a choice.

By dialing your own calls and by taking advantage of our discount rate period, you can still get low rates and fast service.

The blusher length veil tier was worn back and both tiers were held to a matching alencon lace headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisy mums and stephanotis accented with baby's breath and pink streamers. The bouquet had a lift-out corsage which the bride used later to complement her travel attire.

A reception for the newlyweds was held in fellowship hall of the church with the refreshment table featuring a white lace cloth over pink. The triple tiered wedding cake was topped with a bouquet and bouquets carried by the bridal attendants were used for accenting the base of candelabra used on the table. Serving were Jacqualyn Crump, sister of the bridegroom, Nancy Woods of Amarillo, Pat Brown of Lubbock and Wanda Calvert of Turkey.

Rondalyn Crump, the bridegroom's niece, made the chocolate cake which was featured on the groom's table at the wedding reception.

Detten Family Holds Reunion

The 65th annual Detten family reunion was held at Ellwood Park in Amarillo on Sunday, August 10, with descendents of the Henry Dettens attending.

The Henry Dettens originally came to Texas from Illinois in 1907 with their seven children and have gathered for annual reunions since 1911 when the family numbered ten. The Detten family now numbers 450 with Robert Detten of Amarillo the only living child of the original family.

At the recent reunion Mrs. John Detten, 80, was recognized as the oldest living family member with 8 month old Sherry Whitaker honored as the youngest of those present. The Bernard Koetting family from Salina, Kansas travelled the greatest distance to attend and the Robert Kuehlers of Groom were recognized as the largest family present.

Area and out of state relatives attended the annual reunion.

The father is a farmer-rancher in the Happy area and grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William E. Kolb of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McNeill of Happy.

Shower Tuesday For Bob Costleys

The rebuilding of household goods will begin Tuesday evening, August 26, as friends and neighbors honor Mr. and Mrs. Bob Costley with a 'shower' at Canyon Community Center from 7-9:30 p.m.

The Costleys lost all their household goods, personal clothing and their $70,000 home in a fire on Wednesday evening, August 13, while the couple was in New Mexico on a brief holiday.

Lightning has been blamed as the apparent cause of the destructive fire where units from Amarillo, Tanglewood and the Canyon Volunteer Department were involved in the effort.

Canyon's Beta Sigma Phi chapters: Alpha Theta Delta, Chi Omega, Xi Kappa Zeta and Preceptor Gamma Chi will be sponsors for the Costley's household shower Tuesday evening.

All friends and relatives of the couple have been invited for the occasion.

Afternoon Ceremonies Read For Miss Blewett-Poland

Miss Rebecca Irene Blewett and Lewis Yale Poland, Jr. exchanged double ring nuptial vows in a ceremony held at the First United Methodist Church of Canyon Saturday afternoon, August 23, at 3 o'clock.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Edward Blewett of 2401 11th Avenue, Canyon. She graduated from Canyon High School in 1974 and attended West Texas State University. She is presently employed with Consumer's Fuel in Canyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Yale Poland, Sr. of Lewisville, Texas are parents of the bridegroom. He graduated in 1971 at Perryton High School and is currently a senior student at West Texas State University where he is a member of the Reserved Officers Training Corps and Scabbard and Blade. He is employed as a bus driver with the Canyon Independent School District and was graduated in June from an Airborne School at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Rev. James M. Hancock, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Canyon, officiated at the nuptial exchange. A heart shaped candelabrum flanked by four 15 bract arched candelabrum framed the sanctuary which was decorated in the couple's colors of blue and white. Matching urns of blue and white daisies with chrysanthemums encircled by foliage completed the setting. Candlelighters were Randy and Sherilyn Aufleger of Amarillo, cousins of the bride.

Organist, Mrs. Ann Dawdy, presented the Bridal Chorus by Loehngrin and The Wedding March by Mendelssohn for processional and recessional selections. Scott Herrington of Canyon sang Annie's Song by John Denver and other pre-nuptial selections were Hawaiian Wedding Song, Somewhere My Love, Clair de Lune, Melody of Love, Moonlight and Roses, I, For All We Know, Love Story and Romeo and Juliet.

Escorted and presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown which had been made by her mother with her grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Keller, and great-grandmother, Mrs. G. M. Abbott, assisting. The wedding gown featured a high neckline, fitted bodice, and A-line skirt. The bodice, hem of skirt and sheer miramist sleeves were accented with lace rosettes and the detachable miramist wedding train featured rosette trim. Her elbow length wedding veil of bridal illusion was attached to a headpiece of white rose lace with pearl beading accents. She carried a nosegay of white roses and daisies with baby's breath and white streamers.

Tammy Blewett, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Janet Farmer of Canyon and Cindy Aufleger of Amarillo, a cousin of the bride. The bridal attendants wore formal length princess styled gowns of blue dotted swiss crepe featuring square necklines with contrasting sheer elbow length miramist sleeves, and blue ribbon tie belts. Each carried a nosegay cluster of white and blue daisies sprinkled with baby's breath and blue satin streamers.

Flower girl was Deena Kendrick of Canyon and the ringbearer was Barry Todd Keller of Midland, a cousin of the bride. The flowergirl and candlelighter wore formal length gowns designed similar to the bridal attendants featuring blue crepe with white lace trim inserts and a tied sash belt for accent. The flowergirl carried a white basket filled with rose petals and the candlelighter, Miss Aufleger, had a daisy wristlet. The ringbearer carried a white satin pillow which was handmade by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Keller, and by Mrs. Blewett, mother of the bride.

Jon Green of Canyon served as best man. Groomsmen were Ben Richardson of Canyon and George Cook of Guymon, Oklahoma. Ushers were Gaylon Nepper of Amarillo and Chris Aufleger of Amarillo, a cousin of the bride.

Wedding guests were registered at an entry table laid with blue lace and accented with a daisy floral arrangement and blue candle. Presiding at the registry were Dorothy Johnston of Friona and Gina Garrison of Plainview.

A reception for the newlyweds followed in fellowship hall of the First United methodist Church where piano music was provided by Mrs. Hugh Sanders. The triple tiered wedding cake was arranged on pedestals and featured blue and white roses with the traditional miniature couple topping the first tier. The table was laid with white satin and illusion and trimmed with blue satin ribbon with a triple tiered flower vase of pewter holding blue and white daisies.

Fresh mint punch, nuts and mints were served at the reception by Robena Johnson and Susie Reynolds. The wedding cake was served by Jan Henson and Debbie Abbott.

In the reception houseparty were Mrs. Gene Morrison, Mrs. Jim Ward, Mrs. LeRoy Moreland, Mrs. Newton Richardson, Mrs. John Childs, Mrs. W. R. Wooten, Mrs. Paul Lindsey, Mrs. Harold J. Prichard, Mrs. Flossie Johnston, Mrs. Battle Harris and the bride's aunts, Mrs. Gale Aufleger of Amarillo and Mrs. Albert Keller of Midland.

After the wedding reception, the couple department for a wedding trip to the mountains of New Mexico and after August 28 will establish their home at #9 Poole Trailer Park in Canyon. For travel the bride chose a formal length dress featuring red, white and blue with a tiered skirt, fitted bodice of red gingham and white lace trimming. She wore a shawl to accent the dress.

BANKAMERICARD

The Kitchen Sink

BY SUSAN WILSON

The first day of school was traumatic.

The long awaited hustle and bustle of eating breakfast, finding the right color hair ribbon to match a new school dress, and rearranging the glue, pencils and crayons in the cigar box for the 57th time marked the end of one era and beginning of another at our house.

It was D'Arcy's first day of kindergarten. The breakdown was bound to occur.

As I finished putting her hair clips in, she turned to me and we fell into each other's arms.

"Does kindergarten have to start today?"

"Yes, It'll be so much fun!"

"But, I'm not ready!" This said as tears form.

"Sure you are."

"I'm afraid," as tears roll down the cheeks. "The building is so big. What about getting lost?" Sob.

"Don't worry. The teachers take care of everybody." This said with a good pat on the back.

"But what if the teacher is mean?"

"Everybody says the teachers are nice."

"But I'm just not ready." Another sob.

Be brave, Mommy, I'll be home at noon."

So off she went. New shoes, new clothes, new ribbons. Glue that had never been opened. Pencils with points and erasers. New crayons nestled in their box with the papers still on and all pointy. New scissors. A new kid, all clean and shiny.

Yes, I cried. It wasn't because I'd be lonely. I still have Julie and Rebecca at home. Or because I'm growing old. I'll cry about that later.

It's because she's so little and it's such a big world.

Oh, I know kindergarten is wonderful. Being five years old has a magic all its own.

But the Land of Milk and Cookies has rough spots, too. And I can't protect her from them.

She's going to spill dark purple paint on her very favorite lime green dress and she'll cry.

She's going to fall in love with some little boy. But, he'll be in love with another little girl.

And the little boy that loves her — well, she'll consider him "yucky."

She won't be able to swing as high as Kimi or run as fast as Jenny or paint as well as Melissa. And she'll be frustrated. It won't matter that she can sing better than Danny. Or talk faster than anybody.

Mary Jane is going to tell her that she looks ugly and her feelings are going to be hurt.

And, she's going to tell Mary Jane that she stinks and hurt Mary Jane's feelings. And mine.

At snack time they're going to have oatmeal cookies with raisins. She hates raisins in oatmeal cookies.

She'll announce that no one kicked her at school and her Daddy and I will say "that's great." They she'll run from the table saying "No, that's awful. Nobody likes me."

Someone will tell her that her belly button is not where the Indians shot her and my credibility will disintegrate. For two weeks she'll doubt everything I say.

Everybody's teeth will start falling out and she'll be impossible to live with until she loses a tooth, too.

I don't mean to sound negative. Kindergarten is wonderful. She'll paint and color and make new friends and love her teacher and the playground and the whole wide world.

I hope the world is ready because here she comes in the kindergarten class of 1975!

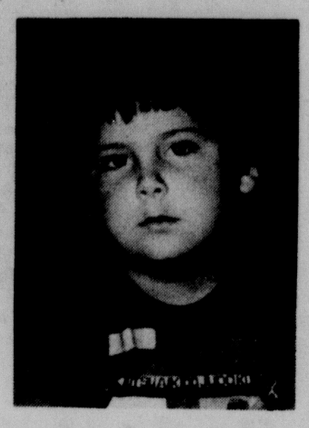
Kindergarten Classes Triple Since First Instituted Here

Jim Fischbacher says he "likes to ride the bus" and his older sister helps him to find the proper room where he is a kindergarten student at Rex Reeves Elementary School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Fischbacher, Rt. 1, Canyon.

"Coloring time is the best" related Audra Marie Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bell of Canyon. She is looking forward to a lot of fun during the school year in kindergarten classes at Rex Reeves Elementary School.

Trella Lee McKay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Len McKay, 1220 7th Avenue, was emphatic in the fact that she has "Three names" and already knows part of her ABCs and some of the colors.

Stefanie Jo Baker likes the "bulletin board clown, the puzzles and the magic bell" in her kindergarten classroom at Rex Reeves Elementary School. She is the daughter of Mrs. Jane Coleman at Canyon Creek Apartments



"Its fun now — but it'll get harder," says Kason Huddleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cordell Huddleston, Canyon.

Kindergarten classes are being filled to the brim in the Canyon Independent School District which is slightly different from the national trend.

Vondean McGregor, elementary curriculum director, noted that the national trend of mandatory kindergarten classes shows less growth in the kindergarten grades than is the case for Rex Reeves and Gene Howe Elementary Schools of the local school district.

In its third year, the public schools kindergarten program at the two local school buildings has tripled.

When the program was inaugurated in the 1973-74 school year the local schools offered two kindergarten sections at Rex Reeves while Gene Howe School had one kindergarten section.

The following year, Rex Reeves kindergarten classes was increased to accommodate four sections of students in the morning-afternoon program and Gene Howe had been increased to two kindergarten sections.

As the public schools resumed this year six sections of kindergarten classes were instituted at Rex Reeves Elementary School building. The kindergarten program had likewise increased to accommodate four sections at the Gene Howe building in South Amarillo.

The six kindergarten sections at Rex Reeves Elementary building in Canyon serve 66 students during the morning class periods with 60 students involved during the afternoon session. Classroom instructors include Virginia Bonifield, Linda Kay Baker and Peggy Trosper. Assistants in the program at Rex Reeves are Pam Butler, Susan Dolle and Carol Callahan.

Eighty four kindergarten students are involved in the two sections offered at Gene Howe Elementary School. Instructors there are Anita Harp and Pam Layman.

On their second day of school kindergarten students were found to be an eager bunch of students, ready to perfect their learning of the ABCs and the 1-2-3-s.

With their hands held high for observance, the students are learning the technique of getting their turn to answer a question or ask one themselves.

They are learning to say the pledge to the United States flag and stretching tall with appropriate gestures to the "wiggle" song before playtime.

Buffs Picked Second In Missouri Valley; Several Buffs On Pre-Season MVC Team

The West Texas State University Buffaloes have been tabbed as second place finishers in a pre-season poll conducted by sportswriters and Missouri Valley sports information directors.

The University of Tulsa was the top pick followed by WTSU, New Mexico State, Wichita State and Drake.

In addition to the pre-season team picks, the Pre-Season All-MVC team was selected. The Buffs dominated the defensive team by the placement of five players.

Floyd Jones, an All-MVC selection last year at defensive tackle joins another Buff lineman, John Ayers, as a pre-season All-MVC pick. WT's Larry Spears, a linebacker, is the only sophomore to make either the offensive or defensive team. Mishael Kelson represents WT in the All-Conference team at a defensive back position. John Paul Lee is the conference's pick as the leading punter for the upcoming season. Lee took over punting chores for the Buffs at the midway point of last season.

With second ranked WT dominating the defensive team, first ranked Tulsa placed seven players on the offensive team. Jeff Lloyd, an All-MVC offensive tackle last year, is the lone WT representative in the pre-season offensive selections.

Tulsa, last year's MVC champion, will be led by quarterback Jeb Blount, last year's offensive-player-of-the-year in the MVC. Blount ended the 1974 season as the fourth best passer in the nation.

Blount will have a top target returning in Steve Largent. Largent led the nation in touchdown receptions last year with 14.

Third ranked New Mexico State University will have a solid base on which to build the 1975 Aggie squad. Thirty-four lettermen will return, of which 16 were 1974 starters.

Of main concern to head coach Jim Bradley is the replacement of running back Jim Germany who was lost to graduation. Germany was the Valley's leading rusher and scorer last season.

Wichita State, ranked fourth in the pre-season poll, will be trying to make a comeback this season after two successive losing seasons. The Shockers' schedule is a formidable one to say the least. They open against second ranked WT and then go against Oklahoma State, Kansas State and Colorado.

Head coach Jim Wright, went to the junior college recruiting route and signed 14 juco players to beef up a team that will have 12 starters out of 32 lettermen returning.

"The Valley race is a one-two proposition. Tulsa is one-everyone else is two and capable of finishing there. The team that can muster the upset of Tulsa can win it all. Drake wants a shot at the possibility."

These are the sentiments of Drake head coach Jack Wallace whose team it was tabbed as last place finishers in the MVC.

Drake will return 13 starters out of 25 lettermen from the 1974 team that placed fourth in the MVC. The Bulldog offense will be sparked by returning quarterback Jeff Martin and running back Jim Herdon, the first break-away threat Drake has had in several years.

Mental Errors Hurt Eagles

The Canyon Eagles scrimmaged class AA power Denver City Friday night on a neutral field in Morton.

"The team looked great for a play of two and then we would start making mental mistakes," head coach Deane Wright said. But, he added, that's to be expected in the first scrimmage.

According to Wright, offensive execution was outstanding as was the passing attack. Quarterbacks Ricky Cooper and Allen Shankles both did a good job the coach said. Receivers Lyndon Brazile, Matt Madewell and John Prater were on the receiving end of many of the night's passes. "I'm well pleased with those players," Wright said.

"Althought I haven't seen the film, my impression is that the offensive line did a good job. Denver City ran a lot of stunts and our line picked them up," the head coach said.

Running back and defensive back Joe Luquette was praised by Wright for both his offensive and defensive play.

Defensive tackles Bob Lee, Drew Hetzler and Charles Schaumann were cited for outstanding play as were linebackers Wayne Robinson and Elliott Berry.

"Defending passes in the flat was our weak spot against Denver City," Wright said.

The Eagles will be scrimmaging the Plainview Bulldogs at 6 p.m. Friday on the CHS practice field. A junior varsity scrimmage will proceed the varsity.

Plainview sports a big team, both in size and number. Seven defensive starters from last year are returning. Both Bulldog lines average 200 pounds or better.

Dean To Speak At Tax Meeting

Al Mitchell, dean of the School of Business, West Texas State University is scheduled to speak at the plenary session of the Iowa Tax and Accounting Seminar to be held at the University of Iowa September 11 and 12.

In addition to his speech, "Organization of Activities of the Division of Federal Taxation of the American Institute of CPA's," he will conduct an afternoon concurrent session on Development of Continuing Education Programs in Taxation.

Dr. Mitchell, a former faculty member of the University of Iowa, worked as a consultant for eight years and acted as chairman three years for the seminar.

Mitchell said he is glad to be on the other side of the scene for a change, and was particularly honored when he was invited to speak.

Miller Named To Committee

West Texas State University Vice President for Financial Affairs Hermas Miller has been named to serve on the Formula Advisory Committee for the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System.

Miller attended the first meeting of his two-year term in Austin Thursday.

He will join 12 other members to determine the formulas which provide the financing for all state colleges and universities in Texas.

The committee's recommendations will then be sent to the Coordinating Board for study and approval.

As the outdoor musical drama "TEXAS" closed Saturday evening following a successful tenth season the Panhandle Heritage Foundation files were opened to reveal an impromptu photograph taken during rehearsals for the first season in 1966. Pictured were original cast members, from left, Dean Kelley who played Dave; Randall Carver who was featured as Dude; Gare Brundidge who performed as Tuck Yell Dell; and Bob King (on the ground) who played the role as Flip. The action rehearsal shot was taken during early rehearsals and since that time the "TEXAS" players have branched into various theatrical fields with Kelley continuing a career in radio-television work; King and Brundidge involved in the management and direction for the Backdoor Community Theatre in Wichita Falls, Texas; and Carver starring in numerous television and movie roles including a lead role in "Time to Run" which will be shown Sunday evening at 7 p.m. at Calvary Baptist Church in Canyon.

WT Offering Variety For Fall

Energy wakes you up in the morning, cooks your energy-produced food, gets you to work, keeps you comfortable, manufactures the products you purchase and entertains you.

Energy touches every aspect of our society. What will we do if there isn't enough?

"Yes, there is an energy crisis," says West Texas State University Associate Professor of Physics Vaughn Nelson, "in terms of how much we need and what price we want to pay for it."

Dr. Nelson will look at the physical and quantitative aspects of energy and its role in our society in a WTSU Monday evening class in Amarillo this fall entitled Energy: Crisis and Alternatives for Survival.

"The course is designed to acquaint the common citizen with the physical concept of energy, entropy work and how a technological society runs on energy," he says. No background in physics or mathematics is needed.

Nelson will also introduce the two most important "limiting laws" of energy, the First and Second Laws of Thermodynamics, which state that energy can neither be created or destroyed, nor can a machine convert heat energy to mechanical energy without energy loss.

The book, "Energy and the Environment," to be used in the course opens with sobering pictures of life in 1985, when energy is abundant by expensive, and waste heat and nuclear waste loom on the ecological crisis horizon.

The students will study the different forms of energy, how it can be transferred, advantages and disadvantages of different types and future possibilities.

"The energy crisis is generally seen as high prices," Nelson observes. "In future, it may mean that someone will have to cut back."

Energy: Crisis and Alternatives for Survival, Physics 39901-1, will be taught Monday nights beginning at 7 p.m. on the AC Washington Street campus.

A special registration for this and other WTSU Amarillo-only courses will be Wednesday, August 27, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Administration Building of the Amarillo College Vocational Arts campus near the Veteran's Hospital. Students wishing to take only WT's Amarillo courses may register that night.

Late arrivals, or those desiring both Amarillo and Canyon courses, should register August 29 and 30 in the WTSU Activities Center.

Psychology of Aging and Later Life, a West Texas State University psychology course, will cover the final end of the human development scale, says course instructor Louis Fairchild, Psychology Department head.

"We are becoming an older country," Fairchild observed. "Several years ago the number of people turning 65 years old became greater than the number of infants being born."

The course will cover developmental issues such as self-concept, interpersonal relationships, life style, institutionalization, problem areas such as mental health and the psychological dynamics of aging.

Fairchild said he was offering the course because "We have so many courses which deal with children, but we don't teach anything that deals with the developments of later life."

Psychology of Aging and Later Life, Psychology 49001-1, will be taught Thursday nights beginning at 7 p.m. in the Education Building. The prerequisite is introductory psychology.

"The earth is being much used," says West Texas State University Geology Professor Jim Underwood. "It is only now that we have realized that much of this is abuse."

Underwood will take a hard, evaluative look at man and his environment this fall in Earth and Man: Conflict or Harmony, a WTSU special topics geology course. He says "he will not offer many answers but will raise important questions" as to man's use of his environment.

"I think we need to look at our resources, inventory them carefully and organize our development so that we obtain the maximum use to the minimum abuse," he observed. "The earth is our spaceship. It's all we've got."

"Too often man, in a frenzy of activity, will do things that are damaging in the long run, to solve his immediate concerns," he observes.

The students will also study soil, water and mineral resources, and look at natural hazards such as earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, landslides and floods. They will examine the world-wide distribution of petroleum and the feasibility of various alternative energy sources.

"We will also talk about such things as population," Underwood notes. "It is one of the greatest problems the world faces."

Earth and Man: Conflict or Harmony, Geology 39901-1, will be taught Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 11 a.m. in Room 216 of the Science Building.

The study of man in the New World has been fraught with controversy for several hundreds of years.

Dr. Jack Hughes, West Texas State University professor of anthropology, will offer a survey of the accumulated literature of early man discoveries in the Americas this fall on Tuesday nights at 7 p.m.

"For many years, we were not sure how long man has been in the Western Hemisphere," Hughes observed. "Any association of man with the ancient remains here were suspicious.

"It wasn't until the 1924 Folsom site discovery in New Mexico that there was incontrovertible evidence of human artifacts associated with extinct animals."

The class, conducted in seminar style, will begin with the earliest reports of early man finds in America dating back in the last century and will end with the most recent literature on the subject.

"We will look at the history of the study of early man in the New World and how it has changed," he said. "It is a study that is still in progress. We are not sure how far man goes back here."

Man probably goes back at least 14,000 years, judging from the carbon-14 dates on finds in a cave in Pennsylvania, he noted. The Clovis culture, evidences of which have been found in the plains region, dates back 12,000 years.

Students will report on their readings in class, discuss the pros and cons, and compare how it appeared at the time with the modern perspective.

Early Man in the New World, Anthropology 39901-1 will be taught Tuesday nights beginning at 7 p.m. in Buffalo Courts on campus.

Women students, along with men, are eligible to enroll in the Reserve Officers Training Corps programs at West Texas State University, and to receive regular and reserve commissions in the US Army, according to Lt. Col. Charles Laakso, professor of military science at Canyon.

The program, first opened to women in 1973, had all restrictions formerly placed upon female participation by Department of the Army lifted during this past school year, Col. Laakso said. Three women from West Texas State attended the advanced ROTC camp at Fort Riley, Kansas, this past summer.

Women students can compete on an equal footing with the male cadets for ROTC scholarships, leadership positions in the cadet corps and the various awards for academic and military excellence. Women are subject to the same screening tests and prerequisites for enrollment.

"The removal of restrictions on the enrollment is certainly progressive and is especially welcome to the program," Col. Laakso said. "In the past women students have been able to take our basic courses for University academic credits only. Now they may pursue their ROTC courses through graduation and commissioning."

Miss Nelda Dorough, a West Texas sophomore, recently won a three-year Army ROTC scholarship, to become the first WTSU coed to win one of these scholarships.

"Women at West Texas State made up approximately 15 percent of the cadet corps. This is comparable to the national enrollment in ROTC," the colonel noted. "There are many women students who have expressed a desire to be commissioned. We are particularly pleased to be able to offer them this opportunity."

Laakso said that he, or any of his staff, would be happy to give any desired information to interested women students during registration, or at the military science office.

More than 150 evening classes in every West Texas State University college and school are available this fall in Amarillo and Canyon.

Registration for these and other WTSU courses will be August 29 and 30 in the WTSU Activities Center. Specific information can be obtained from the registrar.

Agricultural finance, meat science and plant breeding are featured in agriculture.

Special arts and sciences courses are an anthropological survey of early man in the new world, the Bicentennial lecture series, plant geography, topics in physical chemistry, composition, literature, creative writing, metallic mineral deposits, meteorology and government.

Accounting, auditing, insurance, real estate, marketing, small business operation, business research, computer information systems and economics are available in business for undergraduate and graduate credit.

The WTSU College of Education offers courses in exceptionality in children, science, reading, educational diagnostic testing, psychology of mental retardation, psychology of aging and later life, history and philosophy of the junior college and evaluating techniques in secondary schools and colleges.

Fine arts has oil painting, ceramics, piano methods, interpersonal communication, business speech, phonetics and speech correction methods.

CB Radio Buffs Petition To Allow DPS Microphones

Local CB radio buffs are circulating petitions here calling on Texas Department of Public Safety officials to allow highway patrolmen to have microphones and CB units in their cars.

Carl Miller, president of a CB club here, said several copies of his petition are being circulated and will be given Capt. Blackwell of the DPS in Amarillo when completed.

The petitions state:

"Due to the rapid increase of the CB (citizens band) radios and their use throughout the nation, and in view of the fact that other states are now using CB radios as 'extra eyes and ears' on the highways, and to alleviate the need to relay a message several times to inform an officer of some potential or existing danger,

"We, the undersigned feel that it would be in the public's interest to allow the Department of Public Safety officers to have in their possession, and in good working order a CB radio including microphone and transmitting capabilities."

Miller said many DPS units in the Amarillo district now have CB radio receiving units but do not have transmitters.

He said it is the general feeling of the petitioners that it would be valuable for DPS officers to be able to talk with other CB radio operators in the case of emergencies.

He cited a recent example of a CB radio buff coming into Canyon behind what he described as a "drunk driver" who was traveling at a high rate of speed. Miller said the CB operator tried to follow the drunk and transmitted on his radio the fact that a drunk driver was headed into the city. But, because officers could not communicate with the CB driver, the drunk was lost.

Capt. Blackwell said the policy stipulating that DPS patrolmen may not transmit from CB radios is now a state-wide policy, instituted because it is believed patrolmen have more than they can handle now with existing police frequencies.

He said he would pass the petitions on to other state DPS officials, though.

Prairie Dogs At Buff Lake Said Healthy

The prairie dogs at Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge west of Canyon are "healthy and in good shape," reports Refuge Manager Paul Ferguson.

Ferguson said there is no indication prairie dogs in the Randall County area have been infected by the bubonic plague, which struck a prairie dog town in the Muleshoe area two weeks ago.

Two men from the Buffalo Lake refuge went to the Muleshoe refuge to aid in destruction of the prairie dogs which were infected.

Enrollment Predicted To Be Up

With registration only a week away, West Texas State University officials are optimistic that enrollment will increase this fall as the student population picture continues to stabilize.

Enrollment for the fall term, which opens Sept. 2, could be up to around 6800, Dr. Donald Cates, registrar, predicted this week.

But, he said his prediction is no more than a guess.

Enrollment for the fall of 1974 totaled 6645, an increase over the fall term of 1973.

University enrollment before last fall had been declining since it peaked at nearly 8000 in 1969.

"I'm looking for a very slight increase," Cates said. He said he's basing his guess on dormitory room applications, student admission applications and general interest.

He said the university had received an increase in freshman applications for enrollment of about 120 over the same period in 1974 as of Aug. 1.

Reservations for dormitory rooms are running ahead of last year, too, according to officials in the office of the vice president for student life.

The women's residence halls have been filled for more than two weeks with waiting lists established.

Weldon Trice, dean of men, said there are still vacancies in the men's residence halls but the number of reservations is up from a year ago.

Registration for the fall term will be scheduled on Friday and Saturday at the university activities center.

Classes have also been scheduled for offering in Amarillo this fall and in other cities across the Panhandle.

City Contract For Furniture To Be Awarded

Canyon city commissioners will select the contractor Monday night to provide new furnishings for the city hall complex which is to be completed in October.

Five bidders have offered prices for furnishings for the structure with a total projected cost of about $60,000.

Commissioners will meet at 7 p.m. at the community center to award the contract for the furniture and fixtures.

They will also approve another payment to Paige & Wirtz Construction Co. of Amarillo for work completed on the complex.

Jaycees To Host Party In Canyon

The Amarillo Jaycees will host an extension party in Canyon Thursday in an effort to revive an interest in formation of a local chapter.

The party will be at 8 p.m. at the First National Bank here. Men between 18 and 35 are invited to attend, according to Extension Chairman John Duggan.

"In the Jaycees, a young man improves his leadership skills by planning and working on projects of service to his community," Amarillo Jaycee Vice President Rick Wilcox said. "And by meeting and working with other young men in his town, he widens his circle of friends."

Duggan said the Amarillo Jaycees has spearheaded projects such as the recent Multiple Sclerosis Beef-a-thon, a planned Labor Day Rest Stop for holiday tourists, and others.

Families Visit During Summer

The Robert Dettens entertained their son, Dick, and family and the Bob Koehler family of Ponca City, Oklahoma during a recent week end.

Two families went to Carlsbad Caverns, El Paso, Juarez, Albuquerque, Santa Fe and Taos and visited at the Tom Dettens for a turkey dinner and swimming with a watermelon party at the Ray Detten home. The group also spent an evening at the outdoor musical drama "TEXAS" while here and attended the annual Detten family reunion.
